Georgetown athletic authorities and not the players are responsible for the trouble. All big college games, where there is the rivalry that exsts between Georgetown and Hopkins, always use two officials, it is out of the question to ask one man to catch all the fouls while even with two men working the writer has witnessed foul after foul that got by without being called.

The game was so rough that any player who attempted to protect himself was perfectly justified although every one knows the unsportsman like ruling of hitting an opponent, especially when he is a visitor.
